Feirich hailed for service

A retired newspaperman and college administrator with long ties to the University received the 1982 Service to Southern Award presented by the Jackson County SIUC-Carbondale Alumni Club.

Charles C. Feirich of Carbondale, an ardent SIUC supporter, was given the award during dinner ceremonies Sunday, May 2, at The Flight Restaurant located at the Southern Illinois Airport.

The award recognizes outstanding individual service to Southern Illinois. It was presented by Mrs. Dorothy Morris and Roland Keene, assistant to dean in Higher Education. SIUC President Albert Somit was a special guest.

Feirich, 74, began his journalism career as Carbondale editor of the old Murphysboro Independent in 1925, the same year he graduated from Carbondale Community High School and entered Southern Illinois Normal University. During a career which spanned more than 40 years, he edited the Vandalia Union, was editor and publisher of the Cobden Review, published the Illinois Baptist magazine, and owned and edited the Metropolis News (now the Planet) and Brookport Independent.

His association with the University began in 1918 when he attended sixth grade in the SINU training school. He may have been among the first of the school's student activists: as a freshman, he refused to sign an agreement to teach after leaving SINU.

Feirich served as Ninth Naval District Press

Officer during World War II and remained in the Naval Reserve for 15 years.

From 1953 to 1966 he served as a field representative for Delyte W. Morris, SIUC's late president. Then he served as Morris' assistant and later as a field representative at SIUC's Outdoor Laboratory at Little Grassy Lake. He retired in 1973.

Feirich spent eight years as a National Park Service ranger at sites in Arizona, Maine, Montana and Pennsylvania. He's a member of a half dozen conservation groups, including the Audubon Society and Sierra Club, the Wilderness Society, and California's Save-the-Redwoods League.

He was president of the Southern Illinois Editorial Association (SIEA) in 1939-40, and his weekly "Charlie's Column" took top honors in 1971 SIEA competition for best original column. In 1979 he was inducted into the SIUC Journalism Hall of Fame as a Master Editor.

In an "active retirement," Feirich has continued to promote SIUC through the Elderhostel program, which brings senior citizens nationwide to the campus for summer study and recreation. He and his wife, Mildred, are seasoned students on the Elderhostel circuit.

He has written for the Island Reporter of Sanibel Island, Fla., where he formerly maintained a winter home. But nowadays, he's doing "100 percent volunteer work."

Charles Feirich receives Service to Southern Award from an appreciative Dorothy Morris during May 2 ceremony.

Budget forecast: staff cutbacks

Southern Illinois University-Carbondale's $109.5 million slice of the state's higher education budget for next year looks like a slimmer wedge of a smaller pie than last year's serving.

According to the Illinois Board of Higher Education's (IBHE) allocation of the $1.2 billion operating budget proposed by Gov. James Thompson for Illinois' public colleges and universities, SIUC will get about $665,000 less than it did for the 1982 fiscal year.

But University experts say that after technical budget adjustments and internal reallocations, the amount of money actually available to run SIUC for the year starting July 1 is going to be about the same as last year. That's still a setback, they say.

Stretching this year's budget to fit next year's prices is going to be uncomfortable.

"By and large, it's a level budget. It looks like less, but that's more a matter of language than anything else," said John Baker, SIUC President Albert Somit's special assistant for planning. "What it means is that we're going to have to operate the University next year on the same amount of money we had this year, and it's going to hurt."

Thompson's higher education budget for the 1983 fiscal year includes an even $1 billion in general revenue appropriations by state legislature, a 1.8 percent drop from last year's total appropriations. The IBHE's allocation of the governor's budget includes a cut of 2.9 percent in what public four-year universities—including SIUC—will get to spend.

SIUC's $109.5 million 1983 operations budget includes $665,900 over the current year's figures to "annualize" salary increases granted during the year, $138,100 for operation and maintenance of new buildings, $626,600 for utility costs increases, $1 million to maintain and

Biggest slices to be pared from the present budget base:

- $1.2 million that is to be made up through improvements in productivity;
- an additional $1.2 million in the form of staff reductions;
- $879,900 by way of implementing the IBHE's so-called financial guidelines.

Baker said two waves of internal reallocations have "scraped out" more than $1.4 million from the budgets of SIUC's five vice presidential divisions, with most of

"Essentially, we're shifting resources from one part of the University to another to keep the University running at the governor's level," he said.

Baker said that at this point most of the staff reductions called for in the IBHE budget scenario probably will come through attrition.

New people won't be hired to replace employees who retire or resign.

"The president has indicated he wants to do this by attrition as much as possible," he said.

Baker said it's hard to tell yet how sharply students will feel the tight budget's effects. Some classes might be a little larger, and some academic areas might cut out courses and offer fewer class sections. He noted that some classes which used to require laboratory sessions already have been forced to substitute demonstrations for "hands-on" laboratory work.

"I suspect there will be more pressure to do that," he said.

"It can't help but have some adverse impact on the quality of education," he said. "If this kind of thing continues to happen, it could have a terrible impact."

First legislative consideration of SIUC's budget bill was scheduled for a Senate Appropriations Committee session April 27.

improve a variety of University programs, and $149,600 in other new funds.

But that $1 million extra for program improvements won't come from state appropriations. It will be paid for out of tuition increases and still further reductions in the amount of tuition money the University can keep to support campus facilities such as the Student Center and residence halls.

the cuts coming from the academic affairs and research area. A "significant portion" of the savings will come from staff reductions, although some undoubtedly will come from other major budget lines such as travel, supplies, and contractual services, he said.

The medical school faces similar problems, and must reallocate more than $700,000.

Davies' renovation 90 percent done

Question: how much do two full-sized hardwood gymnasium floors weigh? The answer is 485,000 pounds, and that's how much maple floorboarding, joisting and subflooring is going into SIUC's venerable Davies Gymnasium as the final major touch in a two-year, $3.5 million renovation project.

Allen Haake, SIUC physical plant supervising architect, says the gymnasium floors are 80 percent installed. Remaining work on the 57-year-old building is more than 90 percent done and everything seems to be on schedule for a mid-August move back in by SIUC's Women's Intercollegiate Athletics and physical education programs.

Landscaping has been completed and electrical, heating, ventilation and plumbing reconstruction is at the 99 percent mark, Haake said.

"Essentially, it's done," he said. "There's a few things we have to punch in and a few minor items the contractors have to clean up, but it's in."

Haake said the Illinois Capital Development Board is expected to act later this month on the University's request to release $300,000 for lockers and other so-called moveable equipment items. The actual release must come from Gov. James R. Thompson.

SIUC agronomist awarded $61,000

A SIUC agronomist has been awarded a $61,000 research grant by the Illinois Soybean Program Operating Board.

George Kapusta, professor of plant and soil science in the SIUC School of Agriculture, said the grant—spread over three years—will support research on weed control in soybeans.

Six students split $20,000 art award

Six senior art students at SIUC will split this year's $20,000 Rickert-Ziebold Award, the richest cash prize for undergraduate achievement at the University.

The five came out of a field of 18 finalists and will receive about $3,333 to use as they wish to further their careers as artists.

The cash award is made each year out of proceeds from the estate of Marguerite L. Rickert, a native of Waterloo, Ill., who died in 1971. She left a third of her estate to SIUC with the stipulation that it be used to reward the accomplishments of outstanding senior art students.

Since the first award in 1975, some 46 SIUC art students have shared about $150,000 in prize money.

This year's winners are: Margo Apostolas of Carbondale (pastels); Matthew D. Kolinski of Carbondale (pencil drawings and watercolors); Eric Lindsey of Belleville (ceramic and metal sculpture); Robin Rittenberry of Harrisburg (ceramic sculpture); Jane E. Robinson of Eau Claire, Mich., (etchings and watercolors); and Chris M. Stewart of Vienna (intaglio and paper sculptures).

The work of all entrants in the competition goes through a rigorous review that includes a final evaluation by all SIUC School of Art faculty members.

Law dedication set, Blackmun, speaker

The Honorable Harry A. Blackmun, associate justice of the U.S. Supreme Court, will be the guest speaker at the Sept. 18 dedication of SIUC's School of Law.

The 9:30 a.m. dedication will be held adjacent to the Hiram H. Lesar Law building. In case of rain, ceremonies will be moved inside.

Gov. James Thompson and other Illinois dignitaries have been invited to attend, according to Robert Beck, SIUC law professor and coordinator of the event.

Various events are planned with other SIUC academic units during Legal Week, Sept. 13-18, Beck said.

A daylong symposium concerning law issues in medicine and media is scheduled for Friday, Sept. 17, beginning at 10:45 a.m. in the law building.

Other activities in the planning stages include a reception at University House, luncheons, banquets, art and musical events keyed to legal themes, and other academic seminars. A detailed schedule will be printed in the July Alumnus.

Interested persons should contact Beck or Dan Hopson, dean of the SIUC School of Law, (618) 536-7711.

SIUC biochemist gets $507,000 grant

SIUC biochemist Paul A. Hargrave has been awarded a $507,000 federal grant to continue a study of the protein rhodopsin and how it functions in vision.

Hargrave, an associate professor in the SIUC School of Medicine and the department of chemistry and biochemistry, received the five-year grant from the Eye Institute of the National Institutes of Health (NIH).

It marks the ninth consecutive year NIH has financed Hargrave's research on the eye.

Hargrave and a team of specialists will use the funds to study the structure, function and topography of rhodopsin in the rod-shaped cells of the retina that are sensitive to dim light.

"We are looking at how rhodopsin is organized in the membrane and how it functions as a light receptor protein," said Hargrave.

"We don't know a great deal about a number of important functions of the human eye, including the function of rhodopsin, which is found in the rod cells of vertebrates."

Hargrave said the study should provide some of the basic information needed to lead to eventual treatments for such degenerative eye diseases as retinitis pigmentosa.

"It is only through achieving an understanding of the normal functions of important parts of the eye that we can find out what is causing abnormalities," he said.

Working alongside Hargrave is J. Hugh McDowell, visiting assistant professor in the School of Medicine; Anatol Arendt, a Polish exchange professor at SIUC; and research assistants Donna Curtis, Janet Yau and Randal Peterson.

Spring?

Mother Nature fooled the university grounds crew April 6 when temperatures fell below freezing. SIUC photographer Bernie Weithorn captured the Old Main fountain for posterity. It warmed up after lunch and the ice melted.

Tributes mark end of an era

"Like a wave of water, whose action is physically impossible to measure, we are moved inevitably forward because of Delyte Morris. . . . Most of us were caught up by the challenge he presented . . . we are better than we are because of him."

Paul H. Morrill, a remembrance, April 13.

The death April 10 of Southern Illinois University's eighth and most prominent president evoked a ground swell of tribute to his works and near larger-than-life influence.

"He will be long remembered for his many contributions to the development of Southern Illinois University as well as to improvements in the social, cultural and economic well being of the region," said Albert Somit, SIUC president. "Greatness, a term reserved for a select few, befittingly describes his career as SIU president from 1948 to 1970. Today's students, faculty and staff are deeply indebted to Dr. Morris for the vision and energy that he devoted in transforming a normal school into an internationally recognized University."

He was "a leader committed to education and to improving conditions for our young people," said Illinois Gov. James R. Thompson. "His years of service to SIU were marked by his guiding hand, which will affect the future of education in our state . . . Illinois has lost a good friend."

Oregon State University President Robert MacVicar, Carbondale campus chancellor during Morris' last career years, called him "one of the most persuasive people I have ever met"—a characterization common to many others' recollections.

"He was unquestionably one of the real educational pioneers of his era," said MacVicar. "What he built was often referred to as 'the University that shouldn't have happened.'"

Ivan Elliott Jr. of Carmi, a trustee and former board chairman, cited Morris as "the guiding genius of the present day University. . . . He was a man whose time had come."

Dr. Morris was 74 when he died at Union County Nursing Home in Anna, where he had been confined for nearly six years, a victim of the debilitating brain disorder, Alzheimer's disease.

Born April 11, 1907, in rural Xenia, Ill., to C.C. and Lillie Mae Brown Morris, Dr. Morris attended Xenia public schools and Flora High School. He was graduated from Park College, Parkville, Mo., in 1928, received a master's degree from the University of Maine in 1934, and earned a Ph.D. in speech and psychology in 1936 at the State University of Iowa.

Dr. Morris began his career in education as a high school teacher in Sulphur, Okla., in 1928. He was an instructor in public speaking and director of forensic activities at the University of Maine from 1930 to 1936, when he went to Kansas City Junior College as speech department chairman. He moved two years later to Indiana State Teachers College as chairman of the speech department and director of special education clinics. From 1946 to 1948, he was professor of speech and director of speech and hearing clinics at Ohio State University.

He became SIU's eighth president in 1948, succeeding Chester Lay. As president from 1948 to 1970, he guided the University's growth from a small rural institution with a student body of just a few more than 3,000 and a faculty of 250 to a two-campus university boasting 35,000 students at campuses in Carbondale and Edwardsville. At the time of his retirement in 1970, SIU was ranked 17th in the nation by enrollment.

Although Dr. Morris presided over the growth of SIU from a distinctly small-town institution to a university that draws students from every state in the Union and more than 70 foreign nations, he always held a conviction that SIU's first duty was to the people of Southern Illinois.

"We are convinced that our greatest contribution to the state will come from concentration on the problems of the large region that surrounds us," he said in his inaugural address.

"We are not interested in imitating other schools or duplicating measures that brought them heavy enrollments and reputations," he said. "Our primary concern is for the future of Southern Illinois, which we feel a fundamental duty to serve."

To meet this goal, he brought about the founding of SIUC's well-known Vocational-Technical Institute (now the School of Technical Careers), which aimed at giving practically oriented technical and vocational education to the youth of Southern Illinois, and the department of community development, which helped heal the problems of "sick" Southern Illinois towns.

Nearby Eldorado, the first town to ask for help, won a Freedoms Foundation award for its efforts.

To extend the University's educational offerings to southwestern Illinois, Dr. Morris arranged to lease the old Shurtleff College campus in Alton as an SIUC extension center. That move, linked to SIU's pioneer off-campus center in East St. Louis, eventually led to what is now SIU at Edwardsville.

Under his direction, the Carbondale campus grew from a cluster of turn-of-the-century buildings to a modern, 800-acre campus valued at more than $235 million at the time he retired.

A member of many state and national educational organizations, Dr. Morris was secretary-treasurer of the American Speech and Hearing Association from 1941 to 1948, the president in 1948-49. He served on the board of directors of such diverse organizations as the Illinois State Historical Society, Southern Illinois Schoolmasters Club and the Educational Council of 100.

A life-long member of the Methodist Church, Dr. Morris also was a member of the Lions, Elks and was a 33rd degree Mason. He received honorary degrees from McKendree College and Lincoln College in 1967 and from the University of Iowa in 1973. Earlier this year, he was inducted into Illinois' Lincoln Academy.

Following his retirement in 1970, he served for a year as president emeritus and then became executive director of the National Council on Educating the Disadvantaged, Washington, D.C.

Delyte Wesley Morris

Surviving are his wife, Dorothy Mayo Morris of Carbondale; two sons, Michael, of Clemson, S.C., and Peter, of Shepherdstown, W.Va.; a brother, L.E. Morris, of Collinsville; a sister, Mrs. Howard Jayne, of Kirkwood, Mo.; and three grandchildren.

Approximately 1,000 mourners attended funeral services April 13 at Shryock Auditorium on the SIUC campus. Paul Morrill, professor of higher education and former assistant to Dr. Morris, spoke in his eulogy of the late president's fundamental educational belief: "anyone can learn anything, given the opportunity."

Delyte Wesley Morris was buried in a family plot at St. John's Cemetery, Collinsville.

In a meeting the same day, SIUC's Faculty Senate approved a resolution to plan a memorial ceremony for April 13, 1983, and to seek a permanent campus memorial.

The family requested that individual memorial contributions be made to the Delyte W. Morris Scholarship Fund at the SIU Foundation, Carbondale.

September's edition of the Alumnus will be designed as a tribute to President Morris.

Simon praises Morris contributions

A giant has died in our midst.

When I learned through a newspaper reporter of the death of Delyte Morris, the former president of Southern Illinois University, I told the reporter that he contributed more to the healthy development of our region than anyone has in this century.

Upon reflection I should not have limited his contribution in that way, for as I browse through the history of our region there is also no one in the previous century who can come close to his contribution.

What did he do?

1. He came to a small school with an attendance of 3,000 and built it into one of the largest universities in the nation, with over 24,000 enrollment at the Carbondale campus and 10,000 at the Edwardsville campus.

2. He not only built the school in numbers, he recognized—without ever saying it in so many words—that the quality of the educational program at SIU had to be improved, and it was. Markedly.

3. A region which had been poor economically and educationally and lacking in self-pride suddenly found itself the home of a university with a national reputation.

4. He believed that the university could not be isolated from the problems of its area, and he got the university to serve the area in hundreds of different small ways that helped to turn us from an impoverished region with few prospects for growth and advancement, to a region with better prospects, and with hope.

5. He recognized that as the educational opportunities for our area expanded, so would its economy. The educational underpinnings of our region are still being strengthened. Thanks to SIU and the community colleges of our area, the educational level of our people is gradually rising, and the economic level is rising with it.

"There is no one in the previous century who can come close. . . ."

6. He recognized that our region could not be healthy if the greater East St. Louis area was not improved. He started SIU at Edwardsville—no quick cure for the East St. Louis area's problems but an essential ingredient for its ultimate improvement.

7. He quietly enriched the culture of our area by bringing diversity. SIU led—and still leads—the nation in the opportunity which it offers physically handicapped students; long before any laws said opportunity should be provided, he, and SIU, were doing it. Southern Illinois is a region with a history of more than its share of racial problems, even though less than four percent of the 24th Congressional District is black. SIU quietly provided more opportunity for minority students than any school in the Midwest, again long before courts were demanding this. He also added an international dimension to SIU, understanding that this, too, would stimulate growth and development in our region. He had a Jeffersonian-style interest in everything.

Even recounting these details does not provide the overarching reality: he provided a vision for the university and Southern Illinois. And he knew enough about the ins and outs of political life to make much of that vision a reality.

Didn't he make mistakes? Of course he did. He stepped on many toes, sometimes needlessly. And when he requested money for a new home for the university president, his opponents used that opportunity to pounce on him. And the man who has contributed so much had to leave the university on a sour note.

These words I have typed leave out the human element. He and his wife, Dorothy (a most essential partner), were a great team, good company, fun to be with.

Controversy swirled about much of what he did. But he did much. It was our good fortune to have Delyte Morris among us. And because of him, Southern Illinois will never be the same.

Saluki Sports Shorts

by Fred Huff

Homecoming, 1982 style, figures to be an enjoyable happening.

First, there'll be the weekend activities, which have become more numerous in recent years.

Second, Coach Ray Dempsey's football Salukis expect to be in the thick of the Missouri Valley Conference championship race and the Homecoming Day opponent will be another hoped-to-be title challenger, Indiana State.

Third, men's athletics director Lew Hartzog—who'll have some fall-semester breathing room as a result of adding former Saluki great Bill Cornell to his staff as cross-country coach—has devised a plan to bring back—and—honor—the SIUC football team of 25 years ago.

This fall, the 1957 Salukis will be showcased at the Homecoming game. Next year, it'll be the 1958 group, and the 1959 team is to share the spotlight in 1984. Sure, they'll be carryovers. But what's wrong with former athletes being honored more than once? Nothing, in Hartzog's view.

His plan couldn't have been adopted at a much more opportune time.

The 1957 Salukis won five of nine games that season, SIU's first winning campaign in a decade. Coached by Al Kawal, the club had Pinckneyville native Marion Rushing as its captain. Rushing not only is still living in the area, but is a member of SIUC's Hall of Fame.

Other accomplishments by the 1957 team: it tied a school record for most points in a single game (45), and produced such stars as Carver Shannon, John Abromovitch, and Houston Antwine.

It's hoped they'll all be back for the weekend activities along with teammates the likes of Richard Nelson, Richard Dawson, Jack Lester, Dick Carpenter, Ron Bishop, Robert Bouque, Robert Laffoon, Jim Lyncey, Willie Brown, Charles Steptoe, Nick Re, Jim Marano, Shawn Hawthorne, Cecil Hart, Don Miller, Bill Norwood, Dave Wheeler, Tom Kilpatrick, Paul Restivo, Charles Hamilton and Tom Bruna.

It's easy to recognize personalities of some prominence in those ranks. Take Norwood, who is currently president of SIU's board of trustees.

More details will be forthcoming. If any of our readers have current addresses for the former players, we'd appreciate having ours confirmed or updated.

IN CASE YOU'VE OVERLOOKED THESE ITEMS . . . Coach Lew Hartzog's Salukis scored their most impressive track win ever in the Illinois Intercollegiate when they set a new scoring record of 275 points. Illinois held the previous mark, at 219. . . . Ivory Crockett, now a brewery sales rep working out of St. Louis, was extremely active in planning the promotion of a new relay event this year at Southeast Missouri State. The meet, called the SEmotion Relays, was co-sponsored by Adolph Coors Co. . . . Bob Roggy, NCAA javelin champion in 1978, shattered the American record recently with a throw of 307 feet, 7 inches in the Bruce Jenner Meet in San Jose, Calif. He had throws of 299-8 and 298-3 as well. The world record is 317-4. . . . Carl Mauck, former Saluki great and veteran of 13 years in the NFL, has announced plans to retire from pro ball and go into sportscasting. Mauck played 156 successive games for Houston, but asked for his release after injuring an ankle early last season. . . . Itchy Jones' baseball team earned a spot in the Missouri Valley Conference playoffs by finishing with a 7-5 record in the Eastern Division.

All-Americans

school records in 15 events and pace the SIUC team to a third place showing in the AIAW meet.

Van Winkle signs three guard prospects

Three top guard prospects have signed letters of intent with coach Allen Van Winkle to play for the basketball Salukis next year. They're Carbondale Community High School star Brian Welch, Coffeyville (Kan.) Junior College's Roy Birch and Benny Smith of Volunteer Community College in Tennessee.

Welch ran the Terrier's potent offense as floor leader. He played mostly point guard for Carbondale coach Doug Woolard, and is a good rebounder and defensive player.

The son of Harvey Welch Jr., dean of Student Life at SIUC, Welch also will play for baseball coach Itchy Jones. He's the top pitcher at CCHS.

In fact, Welch said Jones' presence at SIUC was a deciding factor in his choice. Northwestern and Southern Methodist University had been SIUC's chief recruiting rivals.

Jones said Welch has the fastball, off-speed pitches and control to step into his starting rotation next season. His size (6-3) and physical strength attracted both Jones and Van Winkle.

Birch played for Coffeyville for two years, averaging 22.4 points a game last year. His junior college coach, Gene Duke, said he compares favorably with another Coffeyville product, Illinois guard Craig Tucker.

"Roy is an extremely poised athlete. He doesn't fluster when he is in an intense situation on the court. He's a good outside shooter who can penetrate," said Duke.

Birch narrowed his decision to SIUC and Arizona before becoming a Saluki.

Smith averaged 17 points a game in leading Volunteer State to the National Junior College Tournament in Hutchinson, Kan. The Pioneers finished the season with a ninth-place national juco ranking.

Smith averaged 21 points a game in his freshman season at Volunteer State. He is a good outside shooter and ball handler, according to Van Winkle.

"He adds that one ingredient we were looking for this year," said Van Winkle, whose first SIUC team was woefully weak from long range.

Van Winkle said he still is combing the junior college ranks in search of a couple of good big men. Several potential signees had narrowed their choices to SIUC and one or two other schools, he said.

Men take 12th Swimmers place third in AIAW championships

SIUC's men's and women's swimming teams capped impressive seasons with strong showings in the year-end national championships.

Coach Bob Steele's squad fell just short of its year-long goal of a top 10 finish at the NCAA championships in Milwaukee in late March. Led by Keith Armstrong, Roger VonJouanne, Pablo Restrepo and Conrado Porta, the Salukis swam to a 12th-place finish.

VonJouanne notched a third-place finish in the 200-meter individual medley and the 200-meter butterfly, as well as a sixth-place effort in the 100-meter backstroke.

Others with top-12 finishes (qualifying them for All-American status) were Armstrong, who set an SIUC record in the 100-meter freestyle; Restrepo, another school record-setter in the 200-meter breaststroke; the 800-meter relay team of VonJouanne, Carlos Henao, Kipp Dye and Armstrong; and the 400-meter medley relay team of VonJouanne, Protta, Restrepo and Armstrong.

The SIUC women swam to a best-ever third-place finish at the AIAW national championships. Pam Ratcliffe, Barb Larsen and Amanda Martin set three SIUC records apiece, while Janie Coontz and Paula Jensen wrote two school records.

Ratcliffe had two second-place finishes in the 100-meter individual medley and the 200-meter individual medley. Martin recorded second-place finishes in the 100- and 200-meter breaststroke.

Ratcliffe and Larsen are sophomores and Coontz and Martin are freshmen.

Coach Tim Hill's Salukis came from seventh place after the first day of swimming to finish behind Texas and Florida State.

Fowl Tip

William Lepola, junior at SIUC, attempts to navigate his beagoosed cardboard craft at the Ninth Annual Cardboard Boat Regatta (May 1). The annual competition, held at Campus Lake, started as a problem-solving challenge for students enrolled in SIUC's Design 102 class and quickly expanded into an open event that has attracted as many as 5,000 spectators. All boats are made of corrugated cardboard.

Baseballers hold unto MVC first

The baseball Salukis held onto first place in the Missouri Valley Conference Eastern Division by splitting a four-game series at Illinois State April 23-24.

SIUC swept a doubleheader April 23 by 9-4 and 4-1 scores behind the route-going pitching of Rob Clark and Ken Klump and some timely hitting, but the Salukis' bats were silenced the following day by Redbird hurlers.

After dropping the opener of the second twin bill 1-0, SIUC lost 4-0 in the night-cap. Saluki pitcher Rick Wysocki yielded only three hits in the first game, but one of them was an extra-inning blast with the bases full.

After being shut out for 15 straight innings by Illinois State pitchers, the Salukis tiptoed out of Normal with a 24-14 overall record. Their 5-3 conference mark left them ahead of Illinois State and Indiana State (each 2-2) and Bradley (3-5).

The Salukis won three of four games from Bradley April 17-18 at Abe Martin Field in MVC season openers for both squads. SIUC won the final three games from the Braves after losing the opener, 4-3.

Solid defense, good pitching and aggressive base running keyed the Salukis' early-season success, but coach Itchy Jones would be more than pleased to turn up one or two more clutch hitters on his young roster.

First baseman Kurt Reid carried a .300-plus batting average and a club-leading 34 RBI away from the Bradley series, but beyond him, the offensive production has been less than awesome.

"I'm still not convinced we're a good offensive ball club," said Jones.

He said the Salukis may be the "best non-hitting team in the country."

Going into the decisive weeks of the regular season, reliever Tom Johnson (3-0) led the Saluki pitching staff. Klump (4-4) and Rick Wysocki (3-3) had been the most consistent starters.

In order to qualify for the MVC playoffs and a possible berth in the NCAA Midwest Regional, SIUC had to win either first or second in the MVC Eastern Division (SIUC, Bradley, Illinois State and Indiana State).

The Salukis were to play Wichita and Indiana State on the road to close out their conference schedule. The four-game series against the Sycamores May 1-2 was expected to determine the MVC Eastern Division champion.

Returning

Char Warring (left) and Sue Faber (right) are two returning letter winners. Warring is described by Coach Cindy Scott as the "most improved Saluki." Faber will be closing in on SIUC's all-time scoring record next season.

Women to be inducted into Hall of Fame

Another group of athletes will be ushered into SIUC's Hall of Fame next fall, but right now the induction committee is looking for nominations.

1982's ceremonies will have a new wrinkle: women will join men in the gallery of outstanding SIUC athletes.

A charter group of women who have left their marks on SIUC athletics history will be inducted—along with this year's male inductees—at halftime of SIUC's first home football game in September.

The Hall of Fame committee is currently seeking nominations. Those interested in nominating a male or female athlete should submit the name and qualifications to Seymour Bryson at the College of Human Resources, SIU-Carbondale, Ill., 62901. A June 15 deadline has been set.

Only candidates who competed for SIUC during the years before and including 1977 may be considered, Bryson said.

Scott optimistic, four starters return

A 20-win season, a Missouri Valley Conference championship and a bid to the NCAA national tourney: that's the three-targeted goal Coach Cindy Scott has set for SIUC's women's basketball team next year.

It may seem like a large order, but Scott has reason for optimism. Four starters from the 1982 team will return—a team that posted a 17-12 mark despite playing perhaps the toughest schedule in SIUC history (six opponents received NCAA bids).

The Salukis had some impressive victories, topping Indiana (77-76), Missouri (71-67) and Louisville (55-52) to capture second place at the Kentucky Invitational.

SIUC also pieced together win streaks of four games once and three games twice, finishing the season winning 11 of its last 16 games.

nucleus of Connie Price, D.D. Plab and Char Warring will have matured, and forward Sue Faber, who is on the verge of becoming SIUC's all-time leading scorer, will be back for her senior year. Faber led the team in rebounds and steals.

Added to the Saluki lineup will be three highly touted recruits. Petra Jackson, a 5-9 forward from University, Mo., will bring a 25-point plus scoring average to SIUC. Eleanor Carr is a 5-6 guard who led Moberly Junior College to the JUCO National Championship this winter. And finally, the Salukis will add some depth where they need it with Ellen O'Brien, 5-11 forward from Downers Grove South's highly regarded program.

"Inconsistency was our weakest spot," said Scott. "We were a young team and often played like that. We want to establish consistency and gain respect by winning games against big-name schools. We should be the team to beat in the Valley."

Track team wins Relays

SIUC's men's track team recorded an historic first April 17-18 at Manhattan, Kan., winning the team title in the Kansas Relays. It was the first time team scores have been kept in the 57-year history of the Relays.

The Salukis edged host University of Kansas 100-99 in the 20-team meet, one of track and field's classic invitationals. In the process, six Salukis qualified for the NCAA Outdoor Championships.

Coach Lew Hartzog got optimum mileage out of his relay teams, which won the 400-meter, 5,000-meter and mile relay events. Parry Duncan, Tony Adams and Mike Franks double on the 400-meter and mile relay teams. They're joined by Randy Geary in the 400 and Marvin Hinton in the mile.

John Sayre finished second in the decathlon and third in the pole vault. Mike Keane won the 5,000-meter run, and Sam Nwosu placed second in the intermediate hurdles.

Stephen Wray's 7-3 was good for second in the high jump, and Ken Matthias threw the javelin 215 feet for second place.

Finishing behind of SIUC in the top five were Kansas State, Oklahoma State, Illinois and Michigan.

Hartzog said the Saluki performance gives only a hint of the team's potential. "We haven't even come close to running at our full capabilities. We aren't even in good shape, and they (the Salukis) know that. We get better each meet," said Hartzog.

That can't be good news for Saluki opponents. SIUC is scheduled to appear in the Drake Relays, Illinois Intercollegiate and Missouri Valley Conference Championships and meet Illinois at Champaign prior to the June 3-5 NCAA Outdoor Championships at Provo, Utah.

Wrestling, water polo dropped

Wrestling and water polo have been dropped from the men's intercollegiate athletics program.

Action came March 8 by the University's Intercollegiate Athletics Advisory Committee on a proposal by Bruce R. Swinburne, vice president for student affairs, and athletics director Lew Hartzog. Swinburne said the move would save approximately $31,000 during the coming year.

SIUC added water polo to the sports roster in 1980 when the NCAA made a 12-sport program mandatory for Division I-A classification in football. That rule has since been eliminated.

The wrestling team rarely drew more than 100 spectators to home meets while weathering several consecutive losing seasons. It was winless this year.

Longtime wrestling coach Linn Long will remain as a tenured faculty member in the department of physical education. Water polo coach Bob Steele also handles swimming. He favored dropping the sport after the NCAA rule went by the boards.

Dempsey signs 16; Salukis to play in 1-AA

All-Southern Illinois offensive lineman Brad Morgan of Carbondale Community High School tops a list of 16 recruits signed by football coach Rey Dempsey during the first week prospects could be signed to national letters of intent.

Dempsey outbid Western and Eastern Illinois for the services of the 6-1, 245-pound Morgan, a rugged two-way performer for the Terriers. He'll probably be shifted to offensive guard or center by Dempsey.

Also signing were All-SICA North Conference selection Ralph Van Dyke of Chicago Heights Bloom, a 6-6, 220-pound offensive lineman; running back Bruce Phibbs, a 6-2, 195 pounder from Hubbard, Ohio; tailback Everett Wilson, 5-7, 180 pounds, Memphis, Tenn.; and quarterback Joe Graves, 6-1, 185 pounds, Crystal Lake.

Graves completed 52 percent of his passes for 1,763 yards and 13 touchdowns his senior year.

Defensive signees included Jimmy White, 6-2, 225 pounds, from Willowbrook; Sidney Blanchard, 6-6, 220 pounds, Memphis, Tenn.; and back Tony Jackson, 5-7, 170 pounds, also from Memphis.

The high school recruits and others signed by Dempsey will join seven junior college signees to help fill out the Salukis' 75-man roster. The Salukis will play at the NCAA's Division I-AA level for the first time next year.

Colorado woman donates $30,000 to University

A Colorado woman with a life-long desire to leave a memorial to her mother has donated $30,000 to the SIU Foundation.

Mary S. Rocassi Fegley of Greeley, Colo., has started a scholarship fund in tribute to her mother, Genoeffa Spagnoli Rocassi.

The Genoeffa Scholarship will be awarded annually to a female Illinois resident of Italian descent who possesses high potential for college work and is enrolled at SIUC. The award will be based on talent and ability, not financial need.

A native of Hurst, Mrs. Fegley, the oldest of three daughters, was only five years old when her mother died at 28. Her father, James Rocassi, operated a general store in Hurst for many years.

"My mother always loved Southern Illinois, and since she died when she was very young, I have been obsessed all my life with a desire to leave something in tribute to her," Mrs. Fegley said.

Mrs. Fegley concluded that a scholarship fund would represent a "living memorial," offering students opportunities denied to her mother because of her early death.

have been nurtured by a family tradition of studying at the University.

Her husband, the late Paul V. Fegley, was graduated from Southern Normal University in 1935. He had been a public schools administrator in Amboy, Pana and Battle Creek, Mich., before his death three years ago.

Her daughter, Jan Marie Fegley Crawford, earned a bachelor's degree in speech from SIU in 1959. Her husband, Richard J. Crawford, formerly of Vandalia, received bachelor's and master's degrees from SIU in 1956 and 1958. He is chairman of the School of Communications at Northern Colorado University in Greeley.

Mrs. Rocassi's three granddaughters and their husbands all are SIUC graduates. They are: Donna Maxton Newton, '66, and her husband, Thomas Leroy, '66, of Hurst; Mae Louise Maxton Hana, '67, MSED '72, and her husband, Norman, '73, of Hurst; and Marsha Miller Murray, '66, M.S. '67, and her husband, John, '67, MSED '72, of Springfield. Mrs. Newton will serve on the committee to select the scholarship recipient.

"The SIUC founding forefathers had a dream of offering the excellence of education in an area often described as impoverished, and I wanted to perpetuate this," Mrs. Fegley said.

Constituent Officers

Kroening, '59, M.S., '60, dean of the School of Agriculture and ex-officio member; William Doerr, '51, Ph.D. '73, assistant dean; Charles Glover, M.S. '63, of Anna, retiring secretary; and Bill Mathena, '59, of Kell, incoming president. (SIUC School of Agriculture photo)

Survivors include his wife, Evelyn; a son, Gordon of Ft. Myers, Fla.; two daughters, Mrs. Edward (Carolyn) Kirk of Chatham and Mrs. William (Kathryn) DeMent of Springfield; and one brother, two sisters and 10 grandchildren.

Elmer D. Murray, '37, of Charleston, and formerly of Carbondale, died April 7, 1982, at home. Mr. Murray taught at various Southern Illinois schools for more than 43 years. He was a former Frankfort Community High School principal and Anna-Jonesboro Community High School superintendent.

Survivors include his wife, Nadine Pittman, ex '31; one son, James E. of La Canada, Calif.; two daughters, Joann Easton of Charleston and Jeannine Rogers of Cobden; a brother, Earl, of Villa Park; a sister, Anna Caraway of Murphysboro; seven grandchildren and one great-grandchild.

1940s

Doris Dreyer Maasberg, ex '43, died March 6, 1982, at her home in Steeleville. She was a retired school teacher from St. Mark's Lutheran Grade School in Steeleville.

Survivors include her husband, Harold, '53, MSED '56; one son, James A. Maasberg of Columbia; one daughter, Kay A. Durkee of Decatur; one brother, Fred Dreyer of Steeleville; one sister, Catherine Weaver of Steeleville; and three grandchildren. A brother preceded her in death.

Herbert L. Bramlet, ex '44, of DuQuoin, died March 12, 1982, at Marshall Browning Hospital in DuQuoin. A state policeman for nearly 30 years, he served as commander of the northern and southern divisions of Illinois. He was the former commander of District 9 in Springfield.

Mr. Bramlet joined the state police in January 1950 as a patrolman and won successive promotions to his final rank of major, which he attained in 1968.

Since his 1979 retirement, he had been associated with his son Gene's business, Bramlet Motor Sales. He was a tank commander in Europe in World War II and was in the Battle of the Bulge.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Ann; sons, Gene of DuQuoin and James Michael of Carbondale; and two grandchildren.

John W. Stansfield, '45, of San Francisco, Calif. died Jan. 25, 1976.

Robert Dean Isbell, '47, M.S. '70, treasurer of SIU's Board of Trustees and system capital affairs officer, died April 15, 1982, of heart complications at St. Mary's Hospital in Rochester, Minn. He was 59 and had undergone heart bypass surgery two years ago.

As chief financial manager and capital planning officer for SIU's board of trustees over the past eight years, Mr. Isbell effected several money-saving techniques in SIU operations. One of them—a method of refinancing long-term construction bonds—is expected to reduce repayment costs by $11 million. The move won a national award for cost reduction ideas from the National Association of College and University Business Officers.

A native of Vandalia, where he graduated as high school valedictorian in 1940, Mr. Isbell joined the SIU administration in 1960 as coordinator of systems and procedures. Among other things, he introduced the first automated circulation system at SIUC's Morris Library and designed optically-scannable admissions sheets.

He organized administration of the Camp Breckenridge (Ky.) Job Center when SIU opened that operation in 1965, then returned to Carbondale as assistant University treasurer in 1966. He became treasurer and system capital affairs officer in 1974. He served in an Army tank destroyer unit from 1943 to 1946.

Surviving are his wife, the former Neva Woolard of West Frankfort; daughters Mona Glenn and Gail Hagler of Carbondale, and 13-year-old Amy, at home in Carbondale; his son, Dewey, of Pompano Beach, Fla.; his mother, Katherine, of Salem; one sister, Joyce Harner of Champaign; and one brother, Donald, of Terre Haute, Ind.

1950s

Collin J. Penninger, '51, MSED '61, of Anna, died Feb. 25, 1982, at home. Mr. Penninger began teaching school in Union County in the early 1920s. He was former principal of Davie School in Anna and from 1959 to 1964 was assistant county superintendent of schools. He retired in 1964.

Survivors include his wife, Dovie Henard Penninger; one sister, Agatha Sitter of California; and one brother, Lynn.

Kathryn (Kay) Moseley Barth, ex '53, of Riverside, Calif., formerly of Carbondale, died March 18, 1982 at home. A native of Centralia, Mrs. Barth attended Carbondale schools and was 1941-42 football queen at University High School. She was formerly a tour guide at the historical Mission Inn in Riverside.

Survivors include her husband, Jack, '49; one daughter, Lora, of Riverside; one son, Reggie, of Murrieta, Calif.; two sisters, Mary Louise Rollinson of Needles, Calif., and Mae Fern Smith of Springfield; one brother, William Moseley of Sacramento, Calif.; one stepbrother, Edward Heern of Hurst; and several nieces and nephews.

Richard L. Dallape, '56, of Marion, died Feb. 26, 1982, at Marion Memorial Hospital. He was a bank examiner for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp. and had served in the Army.

Survivors include his parents of Benton; his wife, Pat Calamia Dallape; one son, Steven; one daughter, Karyn; and one brother, Frank Dallape of Carterville.

Ernest E. Fechtig, MSED '59, of Carmi died Feb. 26 at Carmi Township Hospital. A retired school administrator, he had served as principal of Enfield High School and superintendent of Enfield Unit Four School District, and as the first superintendent of Carmi Unit Five School District. He was a veteran of World War II.

Survivors include one son, James, of Tolono; one daughter, Judy Greer, of Palatine; one brother, Wayne Fechtig, of Mill Shoals; four sisters, Ann Fechtig, of Carmi; Mrs. Edna Detroy, and Mrs. Florence Roser, both of Enfield; and Mrs. Effie Bingham of Carmi.

John Rice, '59, of Zeigler, died Jan. 29, 1982, in the Veterans Administration Medical Center in Marion. He was a retired principal of Mulkeytown Grade School, where he served for 29 years. He was a Navy veteran of World War II.

Survivors include his wife, the former Albina Raczynski; two sons, Maj. Terry Rice of Fort Leavenworth, Kan., and Capt. John Gregory Rice of Fort Campbell, Ky.; one daughter, Judy Lynn Cook of Herrin; five grandchildren; and three sisters, Sena Biggs of Mulkeytown and Ethel Holland and Pauline McKemie, both of West Frankfort.

1960s

Ronald Joe Westerfield, '67, M.S. '69, died Jan. 22, 1982 at his home in rural Carbondale. The death was an apparent suicide, according to the Jackson County Coroner. He was 36.

Faculty

Burton Bond Jr. of Carbondale, former vocational and adult education administrator, died April 21, 1982, in Carbondale's Memorial Hospital following an illness. He was 50.

He joined the SIUC staff in 1969 as assistant to the dean of the University's Division of Technical and Adult Education (now School of Technical Careers) and helped set up training centers in East St. Louis and Ordill which the University operated under the federal Manpower Development and Training Act.

He was an assistant to the director of SIUC's Career Development Center when he took disability leave in 1979.

Survivors include his two sons, Joseph, of Houston, Texas, and Mark, of Carbondale; a daughter, Amy Bond, of Houston; and a sister, Josephine Cooper of Carbondale.

Dr. Howard C. Dibble of Marion, a staff physician at SIUC's Student Health Service, died March 7, 1982, at Barnes Hospital in St. Louis following an illness. He was 64. A native of Harrisburg, Pa., Dr. Dibble was in private practice for 25 years in Marion as a physician and surgeon before joining SIUC's medical staff in 1978.

Dr. Dibble was graduated from Yale University in 1938 and received his M.D. degree in 1942 from the University of Chicago medical school. He interned at St. Luke's Hospital in Chicago in 1943 and served a residency in surgery at Hines Veterans Administration Hospital from 1946 to 1949. He was affiliated with Marion Memorial Hospital before joining the SIUC Health Service.

Dr. Dibble served with the 82nd Airborne Division as a battalion surgeon during World War II.

He is survived by three sons, Thomas, Edward and John, all of Marion; and a brother, John Taylor Dibble of Ventura Calif. His wife, the former Evelyn McHatton, died in 1979, and a daughter, Cathryn, died in 1981.

Concert Pianists

Wilfred Delphin (left) and Edwin Romain, 1973 SIUC master's degree graduates in music, recently played at Carnegie Hall and with the New York Philharmonic. The two, winners of the 1981 SIUC School of Music Distinguished Alumni Award, met

as undergraduates at Xavier University in New Orleans and continued their education after SIUC at the University of Southern Mississippi, where they were awarded doctoral degrees. In addition to their busy concert careers, Delphin and Romain are artists-in-residence at the College of Charleston in South Carolina.

Frank Joseph Finamore, a former professor of physiology at SIUC, died of a heart attack on Jan. 30, 1982, while giving an address in Oak Ridge, Tenn. A former Oak Ridge biochemist with Union Carbide Corp., Nuclear Division, he was a second-year student at the School of Theology, University of the South, Sewanee, Tenn. He was in the biology division at Oak Ridge National Laboratory for 18 years and had been professor of biochemistry at the University of Tennessee, Oak Ridge Biomedical Graduate School, since 1967. During his last year in Oak Ridge, Finamore did research at Oak Ridge Gaseous Diffusion Plant.

A graduate of the University of Virginia and Florida State University, Finamore joined the faculty of SIUC's Department of Physiology in 1955. He and his family moved to Oak Ridge in 1962.

Survivors include his wife, Janet; four children, Frank (Chip) Jr. of Lauderhill, Fla., Debra Lee of Santa Barbara, Calif., Craig of Kingston, Tenn., and Elizabeth at home; and his mother, Mrs. Frank Joseph Finamore of Paterson, N.J.

Dr. Anthony J. Raso, former director of SIUC's Health Service, died April 4, 1982, in Herrin Hospital after a brief illness. Dr. Raso served as a physician at the Health Service from 1950 to 1952, then became its director. He resigned that post in December 1954 and opened a medical practice in Herrin in January 1955. He practiced in Herrin for 12 years, then returned to the SIUC Health Service until retiring in 1980.

In addition to his work at the Health Service, Dr. Raso had served as an associate professor of physiology and examining physician for the university retirement system. He was graduated from the Washington University School of Medicine in St. Louis and served his internship at St. Louis Hospital.

Dr. Raso served with the Medical Corps at Fitzsimmons General Hospital in Denver, Colo. during World War II and was a captain in the U.S. Army Reserve.

Survivors include his wife, the former Mary Biggs; one daughter, Phyllis Veach of West Lafayette, Ind.; one son, David, '76, of Colp; and six grandchildren.

Boyle, Schilpp get honorary degrees

Author Kay Boyle and scholar-philosopher Paul Schilpp were to receive honorary Doctor of Letters degrees from SIUC during the University's 1982 spring commencement exercises Saturday, May 15.

The class included 5,358 degree candidates: 94 for the Ph.D.; 81 for law degrees; two for specialist degrees; 449 for the master's; and 4,732 for bachelor's and associate degrees.

Designated as winners of the Foundation Award, which goes to the top-ranked female and male undergraduates, were Susan D. Carver of Mt. Vernon, an elementary education major, and Welsey R. Maulding of Carterville, a computer science major. Carver posted a 4.0 grade point average, while Maulding earned career marks averaging 3.98.

Richard D. Wagner, executive secretary of the Illinois Board of Higher Education, spoke to graduates during the morning session. Schilpp spoke at afternoon ceremonies.

Commencement ceremonies for 72 graduates of the School of Medicine will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday, June 5, at the Sangamon State University Auditorium in Springfield.

Miss Boyle's career as a novelist and short-story writer has spanned five decades, and includes works published in such between-the-wars reviews as This Quarter and Transition magazine. She later wrote fiction for many years for the New Yorker magazine.

A major figure in the expatriate literary movement which spanned the years between World War I and World War II, Miss Boyle was part of the "revolution of the Word" movement, with authors such as James Joyce, Archibald MacLeish and Gertrude Stein. Much of her writing has dealt with themes of human liberty and freedom, and she has been honored by religious and civil rights groups for her efforts. Her latest work is a book on Irish women.

She joined San Francisco State University's creative writing faculty in 1963 and now is a professor emerita at the university. She has recently completed a stint as artist-in-residence at Eastern Washington University.

Miss Boyle has donated her private manuscripts, correspondence and original copies and first editions of her work to SIUC's Morris Library Special Collections, and has helped arrange the donation of materials by other expatriate writers.

Paul Schilpp, professor emeritus in SIUC's department of philosophy, is founder and former editor of the Library of Living Philosophers, acclaimed as one of the great publishing ventures in philosophy. He has edited 16 volumes of the series since it first appeared in 1938.

He came to SIUC in 1965 as distinguished research professor in philosophy and was well-known for his introductory "Moral Decisions" course. He was granted emeritus status in 1980, but returned as visiting professor that year and in 1981.

Schilpp will donate his archives of more than 40 years of conversations with distinguished philosophers and research conducted for the Library of Living Philosophers to SIUC's Morris Library.

Movie and television actor Eddie Albert will be awarded the honorary Doctor of Fine Arts degree during the University's summer commencement exercises in August.

Best known for his 40-year career as a motion picture, stage and television actor, Albert also is an ardent conservationist who averages more than 100 speaking engagements a year on behalf of his favorite causes—fighting world hunger and environmental pollution and promoting soil conservation.

Albert has appeared in more than 60 motion pictures, 11 stage productions and several television series. He has been nominated for two Academy Awards, and has won the National Film Critics award for best supporting actor.

The Eddie Albert Fund was established in 1978 in the SIU Foundation to promote activities such as conservation of natural resources, increasing world food production and development of alternatives to fossil-fuel energy sources. The Fund presents the annual "Eddie Albert Humanitarian Award" to promote conservation by business and industry.

SIU Foundation assists students

The past year was a good one for the SIUC Foundation, and students are reaping some much-needed benefits.

According to its annual report, covering the fiscal year that ended March 31, the Foundation provided more than $411,000 in scholarships and loans to SIUC students. That is the largest outlay for student financial aid in the corporation's history, said executive director Joseph Goodman.

"There's a greater emphasis by the Foundation to help as many students stay in school as possible," Goodman said.

A total of $153,849 in scholarship awards went to some 260 SIUC students. For the most part, awards recognized academic excellence and financial need. This year's largest student award, $1,000, was provided through the George Queen and Gladys Wright Scholarship Fund for History.

The Foundation, a private corporation which channels funds and gifts in kind (property) to designated University departments, presented scholarship awards to students in almost every department and college at SIUC during the year, Goodman said.

In addition, the Foundation made interest free loans of more than $257,600 to 1,652 students. Most such loans go on a short-term basis to students in temporary financial trouble.

The Foundation took in nearly $2 million in cash and gifts, a record amount, Goodman said. Donations included $1.7 million in cash contributions and $261,100 in gifts-in-kind (property).

Individual contributions numbered

12,189, a jump of 2,000 over last year. Goodman credited "more proficient fund raising practices by the Foundation" for the increase.

In light of proposed cuts in federal grant and loan programs, Goodman said, the Foundation plans to play a larger role in providing financial assistance to SIUC students. Although many donors specify how contributions are to be used, the Foundation will recommend that certain donations be earmarked for "needy areas." "We feel student aid is an especially needy area at this time," he said.

Foundation aid can supplement student needs, but can't begin to replace dollars that may be lost through federal cutbacks, Goodman said.

"We're just a drop in the bucket compared to government aid," he said. "But we may be able to help a few financially strapped students stay in school."

In addition to student aid, the Foundation distributed $4,150 in awards to 14 faculty members and cash and gifts valued at $982,000 to University departments.
